Supplemental Course Summary Sheet

Applicant Name: ______

Because art therapy comes from a studio art and psychology background, the pre-requisites listed below are required. These prerequisites are required by the American Art Therapy Association.

Please complete the following chart to demonstrate when you have or will complete the prerequisites. If you have not yet taken the class, please indicate when you will take it. If the class title does not readily show that it included drawing, painting or figurative clay, please indicate this in the description and send a syllabus or official course description to artx@gwu.edu. The course grade for all prerequisites must be a B or above (B- is not accepted).

1. Studio Art

18 credits that must include at least one class (3cr) in drawing, painting and figurative clay. Up to 6 credits (equivalent to two courses) of the total 18 credits may be earned through training outside of traditional academic settings, with 15 learning hours equating to one semester credit. Instead of a transcript, the studio art instructor must verify this experience.

Credits/Institution/Semester/Year/Grade	Description, if needed
3 cr/George Washington University/Fall 2009/A-	This course covered clay techniques including hand building the figure (syllabus to be sent)
	3 cr/George Washington University/Fall

2. Psychology

6 credits in theoretical and/or applied psychology

Theoretical and/or applied psychology includes courses such as Abnormal Psychology, Psychopathology, Life Span Development, Therapy Practices, Personality, Sexuality, etc. These classes focus on understanding various populations and effective strategies for working with them. Please note that research and statistics courses in psychology do not fulfill this requirement.

Course	Credits/Institution/Semester/Year/Grade	Description if needed
Example: Human Development	3 cr/George Washington University/Fall 2009/A-	This course covered all of the stages of human development.
